GOLDEN JUBILEE YEAR

1950

Chuck IAMMARINO

The 1950

In this Golden Jubilee issue of The Exodus, we have aimed to show more than faces and activities of those who have attended here. Of even greater importance than these is the spirit which has made "Old East High" remarkable among high schools for fifty years.

The Yearbook Staff, June 1950

Best Three Years of Our Lives

By

Klara Krech

Before the steps we stand —
A shy, uncertain little band

We wonder what the days will bring;
Will studies be hard, and teachers kind
Will we like East High; more important,
Will it like us?
These were the questions that came to our minds
As we entered East High

And we were all just a bit sad.

Before the steps we stand —
No longer a shy, uncertain little band

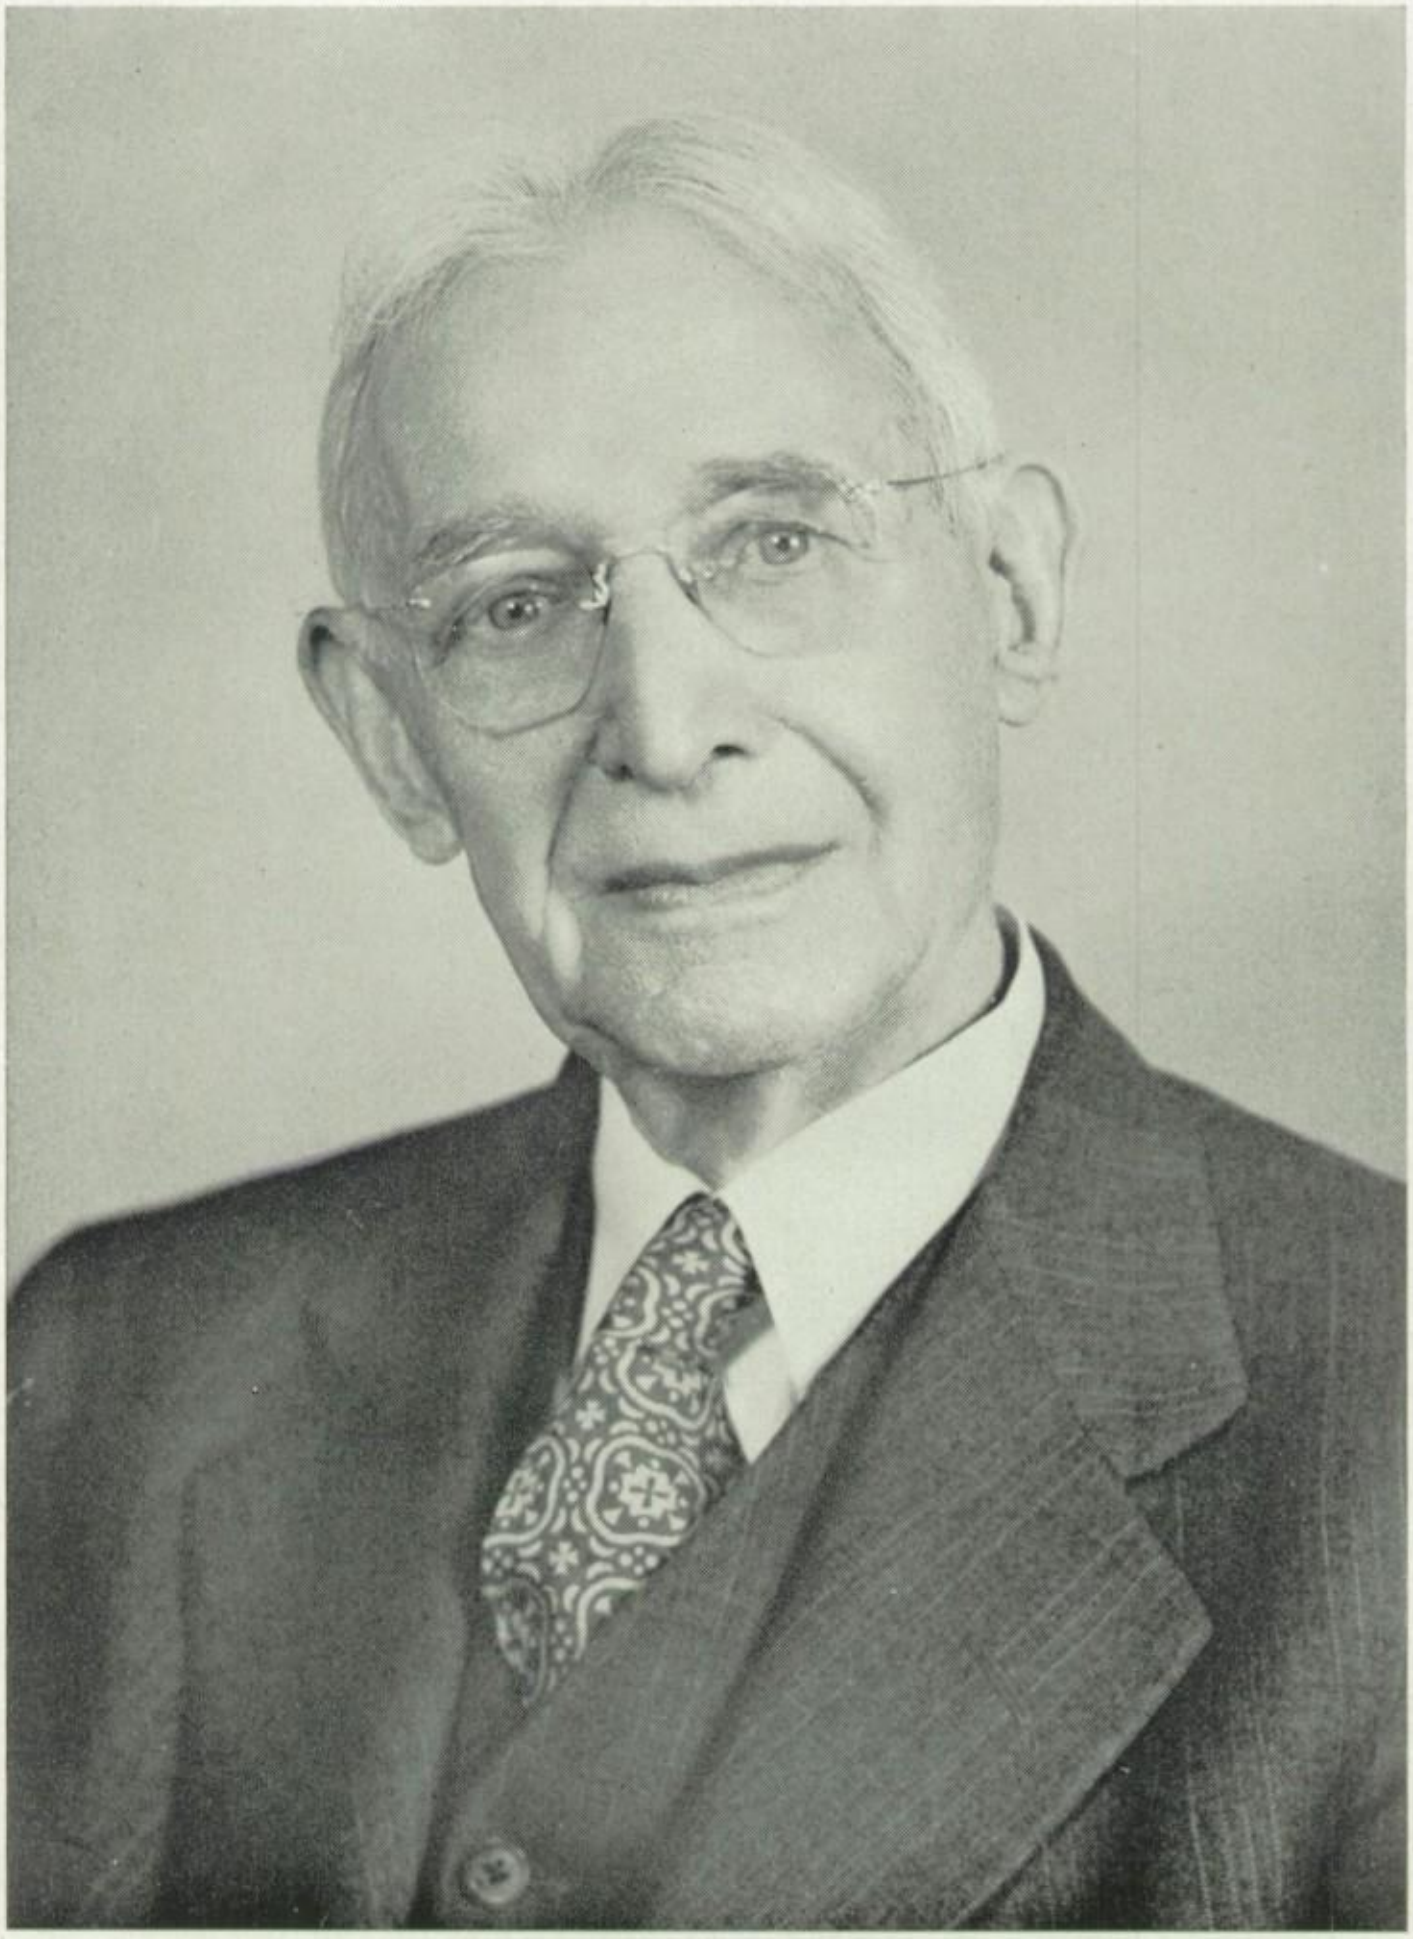
It's our junior year, and we're having fun!
Football, baseball, rallies — now we're a
Part of East High, the heart of East High,
We've just begun!
Wait til we're seniors, the school's big wheels —
Then — graduation!

It's no wonder we're all so glad.

Before the steps we stand
A joyful, but uneasy, little band

These three years have certainly sped!
We've reached the peak, "the cream of the crop";
The friends we've made, the things we've learned —
Certainly worth the try!
Now we're leaving; no more studies, no more books,
No more homework — Isn't it wonderful!

Then tell us, someone, why do we feel so sad?



Benjamin U. Rannells, first Principal of East High

Dedication

IN two World Wars, ninety-three East High School boys have sacrificed their lives to insure the freedoms which we now enjoy. To them we dedicate this book. Their memory will be forever inscribed in our hearts.

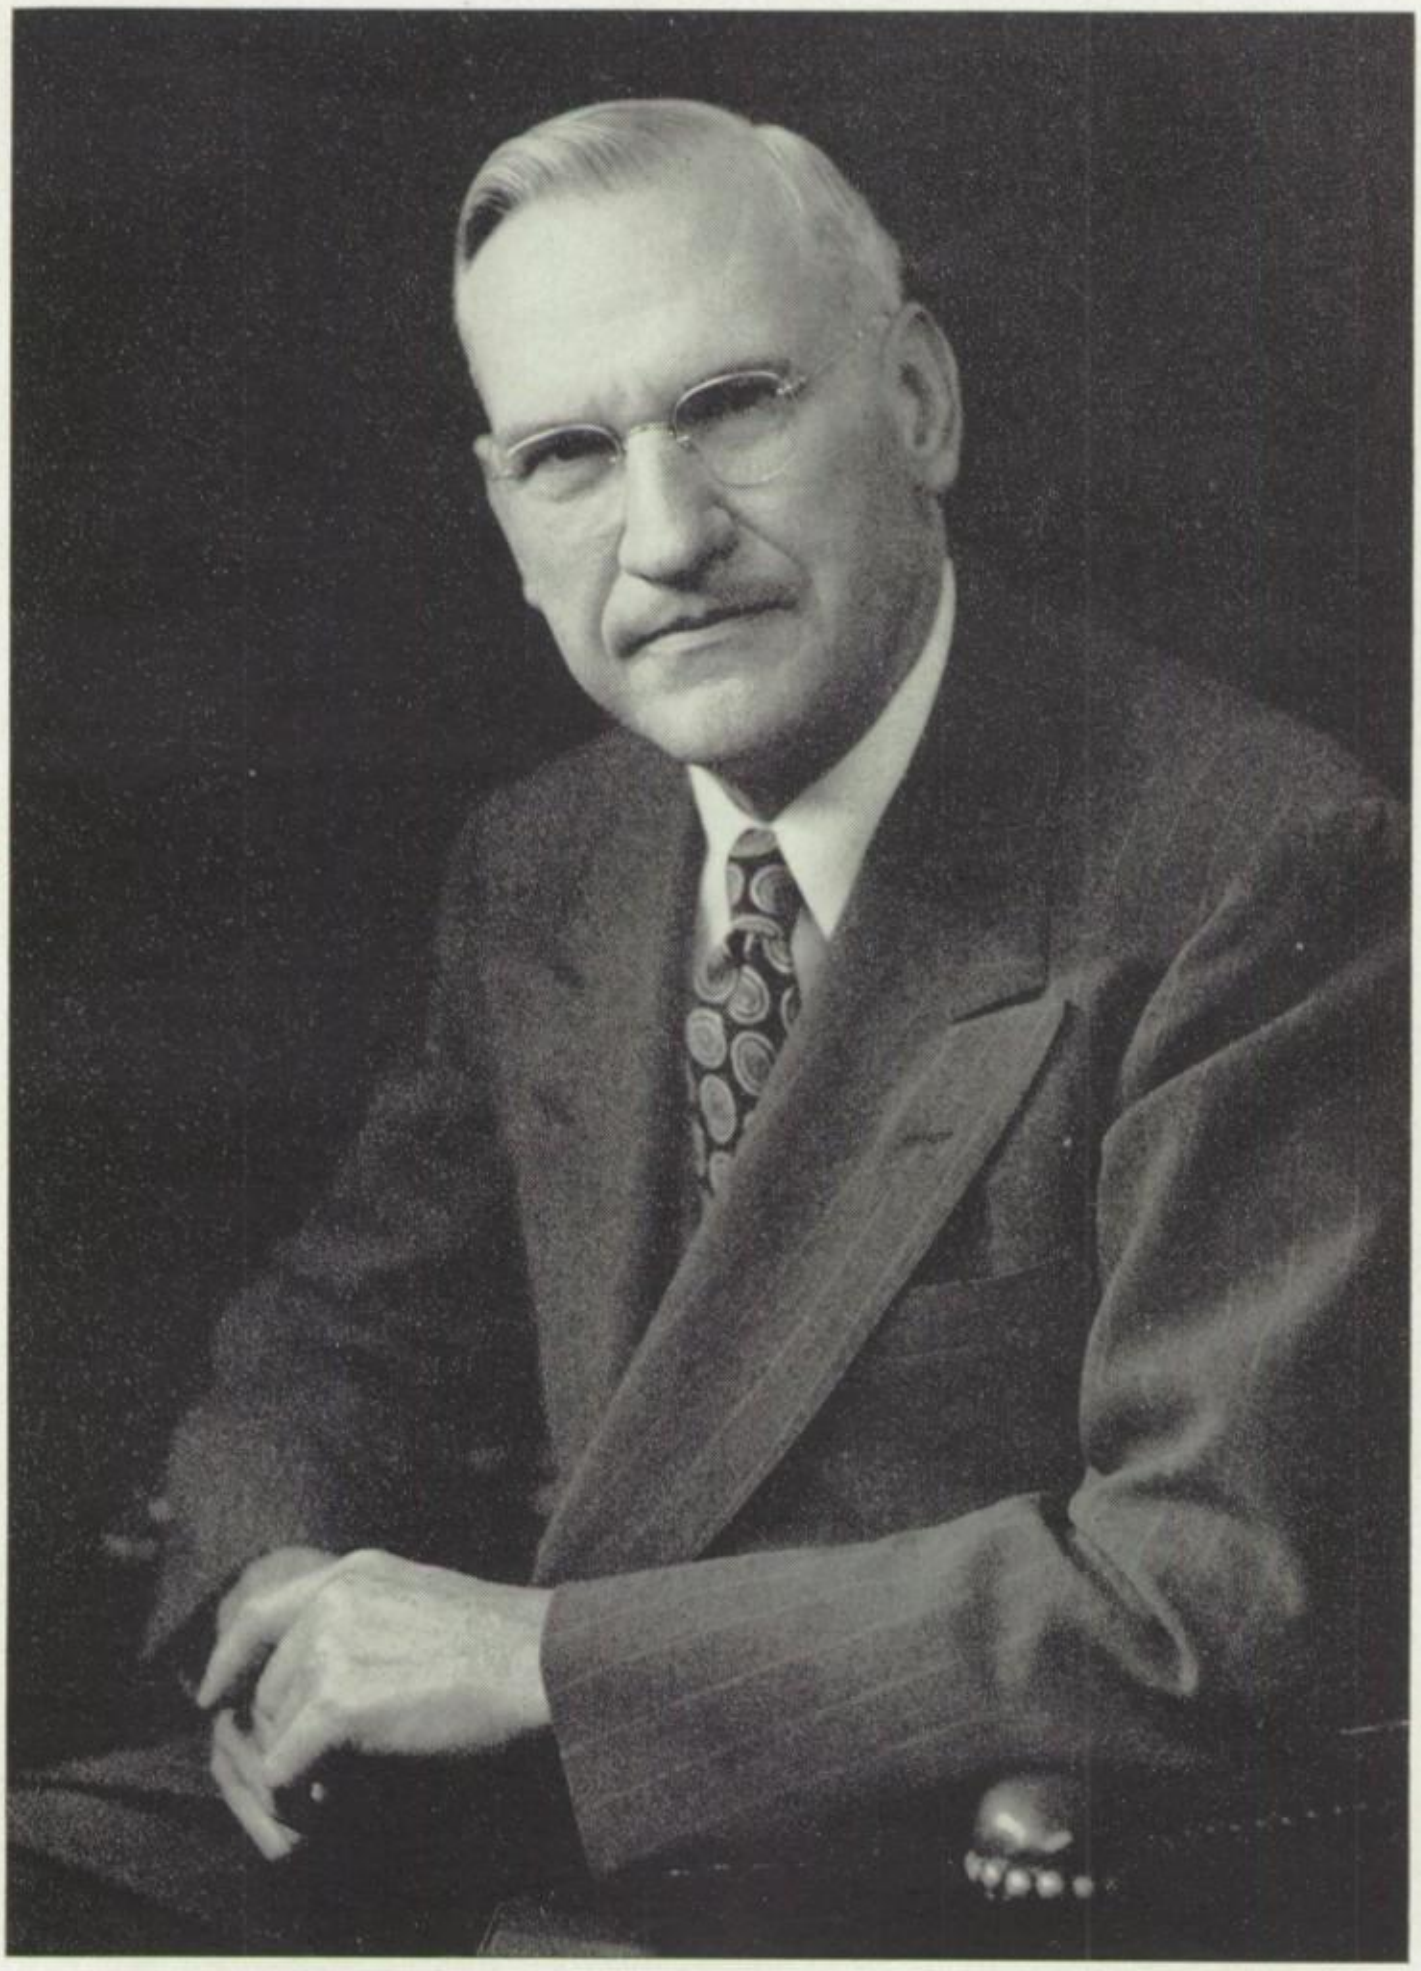
Amos Parrish 1911



Dr. P. M. Watson, principal of East High

AN UNUSUAL DISTINCTION has chanced to fall on the members of your class. You are graduating during the year of East's Golden Jubilee. However, your class has other things to make it distinguished. Many of you have demonstrated good character, useful service, fine scholarship, and a strong spirit of friendship.

Fifty years of educational leadership lie behind your class of June, 1950. Your school has tried to be faithful to her obligations. Now, after three years here, you are ready to begin new activities. I sincerely hope that your experiences at East High School will assist you in your desire and effort to live useful and happy lives.

J. J. Stillinger

Assistant Principal

AS YOU JOIN the other fifteen thousand graduates of this school, may you, like so many of them, show a civic intelligence beyond the ordinary. This is not too much to expect, for the experiences you have had during your three years here were planned toward that very end, as were theirs before you. The emphasis on good work habits, on friendly relationships, on participation in the management of school affairs, and on the traditions that give East High School its special character will make you, I hope, a good and happy citizen.

Grace A. Martin

Assistant Principal

A GREAT MANY and widely varying are the wishes that go into my God's speed. Among them, I include to each of you a generous share of success, an abundance of health, and an abiding happiness that has its fount within you. I wish for you courage and strength in the face of sorrow and evil.

If good fortune and a fleeting bit of fame should come your way, may you savour it with self-respecting humility. I hope that you each will develop into a strong person with sound convictions, but no bigotries, a person whose distinguishing mark is his kindliness.

What I wish for you most, you see, are not "things," but a thinking maturity, a way of life springing from your inner faith.

School Day Memories

Historic Headlines from the Class of June '50

TODAY representative groups of the 412 10Bs who entered East High from Addison, Empire, Willson, and Patrick Henry Junior Highs searched without success for the mythical fourth-floor swimming pool of East High. After obtaining their homeroom and class assignments in the third-floor auditorium, the new Eastites, a bit confused but unamused, set out in search of other oddities of old East High among which they hoped to find an elevator pass and an automatic pencil dispenser. The majority of searchers gave up after the first day.

As the semester draws to a close, the sophomores are given to exploring the dim passages of their hearts wherein dwell fleeting memories of proud and happy moments of the past semester.

In kaleidoscopic review, those early days bring back patterns of memories — the 10B Mixer where, as new and bewildered Eastites, they met "old timers" who would contribute to their lives here — the 10B recognition assembly in which 32 class members were recognized for excellence in scholastic departments of East High — the equally dignified remembrance of Ken Cummins, Ed Fisher, Donna Fortin, Clifton Gemes, Al Houry, Dolores Kaucic, Klara Krech, Betty Shoff, Dave Sugiuchi earning marks worthy of the honor roll during the term — memories of rallies — and the football queen dance — assemblies — interscholastic football and basketball competitions — club meetings — and the Thanksgiving play in which Leo Krokos made his first high school appearance.

Here too is discovered the pride the class felt when Dave Sugiuchi was elected treasurer of the Student Council.

A little older, a little weary, and much wiser the 10Bs will soon embark upon their careers as 10As with the hope that they will have many pleasant memories ahead of them.

THE class of June, 1950, has just cleared another hurdle in the race of life. Although only one-third of the race has been run, the group looks like a sure winner. The group got off to a fast start by participating in the school play, Our Town. Training their talents for the success of this production were Rita Steg, make-up artist; Leo Krokos, who portrayed Craig. Assisting in the production of this play were Carl Lang and Ed Fisher who worked diligently on the stage crew.

To supply a flying finish of this second lap Dave Sugiuchi was re-elected Student Council treasurer. Two-thirds of the course must still be run but, barring injuries, these entries seem certain to walk away with top honors at the '49-'50 East High meet.

DINNY P. DIMBERT, a cartoon character creation of a classmate, Jim Dennis, staff artist of the Blue and Gold, delivered a speech last night at a meeting of his fellow leprechauns. During his discourse he recounted some of the trials and tribulations of the June, 1950, class's eleventh year as he saw them.

Mr. Dimbert started his lecture by elucidating on the good times everyone had had. He particularly emphasized the operetta, The Pirates of Penzance, in which Don Maloof appeared as the pirate king and Leo Krokos portrayed General Stanley.

Continuing in his flowing oratorical style Dinny moved on to Student Government Day which was the high point of the semester. He explained the system whereby the students took over control of the administration and class activities for one day. An example emphasized by Dimbert was the duty performed by Louise Ducosky who acted as librarian.

Doing their bit by working in the office were Doris Uebel, Betty Ann Hynd, Lorraine Erwin, Kinuko Nakashige, and Loretta Zagars.

SHIFTING to the 11A term D.P.D. recalled the proud, yet tense moment when he encountered the chest X-Ray. All fears were unfounded, however, for no tuberculous Eastites were detected, and everyone benefited from having this free, up-to-date medical examination.

In the entertainment field Dinny talked of the class's support of the play Death Takes a Holiday in which we saw the fine acting of Leo Krokos and Clifton Gemes. He also told of the May Queen Dance during which Margie Blaha acted as one of the queen's attendants. Joe Mozic was praised for his fine cheerleading.

In completing his address, Dimbert spoke of the pride everyone felt when Claudia Bruce, Dave Sugiuchi, Ed Fisher, Klara Krech, and Donna Fortin were inducted into the National Honor Society. Dave and Claudia were also elected officers of the Student Council.

Next he listed the names of those class members who received honors in contests which they entered that semester. Those named were Klara Krech who captured first place in the local spelling contest, Pat Henderson who took second prize in the Halle Regional Art Exhibit, and Ruth Charwenske who rated an honorable mention in the News Regional Writing Contest.

Although he intended to end his dissertation in an air of solemn dignity he couldn't resist the temptation to mention the gaiety that prevailed at the East High picnic held at Euclid Beach in June.

DR. P. M. WATSON, the resident physician of East High School, has reported that he has successfully overcome the latest epidemic of Senioritis to strike this area. Aiding him in his scrutiny of this strange malady which attacks almost every senior were Miss Grace A. Martin and Mr. J. J. Stillinger, who head the institution's research division.

In his report to the Meducational Association, Dr. Watson pointed out that early detection is one of the essential factors in combating this ailment. He explained the necessity for guarding against such secondary infection as spring fever which might produce alarming complications.

To illustrate his method of treatment Dr. Watson made public the case histories of the 239 graduating seniors. An outstanding aspect of this treatment was the way in which the patients helped themselves. Joining in school activities was one phase of the treatment which was particularly emphasized. Examples of activities which the seniors witnessed were the football games and the operetta. These events were particularly interesting to the class because their fellow students were contributing to the success of these projects. For instance, Dave Sugiuchi was co-captain of the football team which included many outstanding players from our class. Making the half times of these same football games more interesting were the trim majorettes Judy Riley, Rita Steg, and Margie Bond. Appearing in the operetta Mikado were Don Maloof, Leo Krokos, and Laura Roberts.

Another activity in which everyone participated was the 12B class election. Chosen to lead the Senior Bs were Dave Sugiuchi, President; Alma Montali, Vice President; Klara Krech, Secretary; Joe Mozic, Treasurer, and Jim Dennis, Sergeant at Arms.

To complete the first phase of his treatment, Dr. Watson prescribed a few inspirational moments. At an impressive ceremony ten class members were inducted into the National Honor Society. They were Jim Dennis, Alma Montali, Jean Searles, Doris Allen, Helen Retzer, John Mierzwa, Donna Kilbane, Barbara Shiller, and Joe Mozic.

Also an inspirational interlude was the East High fiftieth birthday party on November 30, 1949. Guest of honor at this party was the first principal of East High School, B. U. Rannells, who spoke to the assembled students. Also present was a seven-layer, 6 by 8-foot birthday cake, of which everyone in the school enjoyed a piece.

Completing the list of inspirational moments was the choice of Klara Krech as Mantle Orator for the Golden Jubilee Commencement. Klara was chosen from a list of 25 extremely well-qualified girls.

GOING into the second phase of his treatment, Dr. Watson decided isolation in the auditorium was necessary.

A marked advancement was shown by the selection of class officers. Dave Sugiuchi was re-elected President, to be assisted by Ed Fisher, Vice President; Klara Krech, Secretary; John Mierzwa, Treasurer, and George Wilson, Sergeant at Arms. Elected to posts in the Student Council were Joe Mozic and Donna Fortin who served as President and Vice President, respectively.

A real shot in the arm was derived from the Senior Revue, Follies of Fifty, which was produced to secure funds for further treatment. The script committee, which put this production together with the help of the faculty adviser, Miss Gisela Birkner, consisted of Donna Fortin, Carolyn Eaton, and Dave Sugiuchi. Co-ordinating this excellent production on the stage was Mistress of Ceremonies Arlene Zafarana.

The patients' improvement continued rapidly with the National Honor Society induction when Marilyn Andreas, Jacqueline Desberg, Dorothy Ford, Cleveland Hill, Christine Kanillos, Dolores Kaucic, Ann Lipold, Kinuko Nakashige, Thomas Papes, Bettie Radio, Laura Roberts, Mary Ann Sebrasky, and Robert Zizelman became members of the society.

Complete recovery was in sight by the time of the Jubilee May Queen Dance at which Sadie Lombardo reigned. However, a relapse was narrowly averted when Klara Krech, Ray Pickett, Jackie Desberg, Jim Dennis, Mary Ann Rossman, Laura Roberts, and Elsie Wallencheck fell to reminiscing as they completed their assignments for the last issue of the Blue and Gold they would ever help to publish. Only such momentous events as the Prom — George Wilson and Alma Montali were co-chairmen — the Senior Recognition Day assembly, and the Golden Jubilee Celebration, June 10, were able to bring the patients out of the coma of grief they had lapsed into while thinking of the pleasant associations they would soon leave behind.

Full recovery was assured at the Commencement, which was one of the finest ever presented, a real tribute to East High's fifty years of progress.

From his findings, Dr. Watson was able to assure the patients that there would be no recurrence of mal de senior and that they would live long, happy, productive lives serving mankind as faithfully as they had served Old East High School.

A Tribute to East's New High School

Delivered before 40,000 alumni at the official opening of the ultra modern edifice

Human beings and East High Students:

We are gathered here this afternoon, with the go-lorious sunshine warming our hearts, and the very trees nodding their approval in response to the promptings of a gentle breeze, to dedicate the most modern of buildings, this new East High School, to the illustrious class of 1950.

We meet to pay tribute to the worthy members of that class, whose untiring efforts were directed toward the improvement of their alma mater. During three years of attendance, they have contributed remarkably to the successful period which our school has enjoyed.

I am pleased to see that so many members of this distinguished group, whose golden anniversary we celebrate today, are able to be here to witness this ceremony.

Such prominent men as John Mason, Bill Blake, and Lee Galloway will no doubt remember when this building had no escalators and only one small elevator. Students were actually forced to walk as many as four flights of stairs. Today we shall demonstrate how our parabolic escalators, designed by Pauline Kurtz, will deliver students from classroom to classroom, up or down floor levels, and around a maze of corridors by the mere shifting of a lever.

Nancy Di Santo and Elinor Freska, prominent members of the class of June '50, have planned a tour of the new school which will enable members of former classes to see for themselves the advantages of this building with its 50 acres of floor space.

Ray Pickett and Carol Kuchta will be in charge of our modern cafeterias where only the rarest delicacies are served daily to students by well-dressed robots.

We feel sure that Lionel Meister and Ed Fisher will rejoice while reclining on the luxurious velvet sofas in the new jet-candescent-lighted auditorium. There they can observe the stage-sized television set built by Tom Papes, recreating recent Broadway hits.

Don Labus, Dolores Kaucic and Cleveland Hill will, no doubt, be anxious to join in the community song session around the automatic baby grand piano recently donated by the president's wife, Georgene Gibson. This piano responds to the wishes of the group and accompanies any requested number faultlessly.

Those desiring recreation during the period allotted for the tour may take the nearest escalator to the sunken swimming pool where Susan Friend and Ruby Cross will pass out milk-spun suits for a small fee to cover cost of bovine producers.

Marilyn Andreas will demonstrate to the literary-minded visitors the sound-proof library furnished with spool recordings of the latest books from all over the solar system.

Immediately after the tour Grace Previte wishes all alumni to leave their Rocket Rockers in the penthouse parking lot and meet in the air-conditioned social room.

Here a variety show, under the direction of Al Valenti and Jack Arnold, will be presented. Starring in the program are Mitzie Akiya, Eugene Baucco, Michael Bertt, and Ronald Dopirak.

Since we have been assured by Ed Radish that his heart-breaking portrayal of Grandma Moses will bring tears to the eyes of all observers, it has been decided to sell Weep-No-More tissues. Donna Kilbane, Louise Ducosky and Ann Bobo will handle this concession, while Alma Montali will be in charge of blowing.

The Venusian orchestra under the direction of Don Maloof will render a few unusual selections. Arabian Nightshift solos will be by Al Houry, Mike Facine and Bernice Watchler. Assistant Director John Thorne has undertaken the selling of sound-proof earmuffs to all music lovers during intermission.

Sylvester Davis, if he can recover his crutches from their recent abode on the auditorium chandelier where actress Clifton Gemes playfully tossed them, will explain the use of the drinking fountains at the rear of each classroom.

I am sure most of you already know that the right-hand button on the fountains is for the type of drink desired, such as sodas, pop, or milkshakes, while the one at the left is for the chosen flavor.

Louis Kurtz and Ed Bryan have kindly offered their services as pilots of the moon rockets which will depart at two-hour intervals today from the roof of the library. The fee of two flying saucers and a chipped cup for adults and a shooting star for children will be collected at the gate by Emanuela Dabato and Bertha Witt.

Robert Dombrowski has asked me to announce that teen-agers wishing to race their hot-rockets may do so on the course provided through the bowling alley. They are warned, however, by Jim Endicott to spare as many players as possible.

Due to unforeseen difficulties the overseas short-wave unit in the journalism suite is temporarily out of control, but repairs are being made by John Solymosi and Bernard Steen, experts in this field.

Jim Abplanalp wishes to thank the Pity-On-You Hospital for the use of their flying wheelchairs so that Margie Seldner, Verne Watson, Ronald Fieth and Kinuko Nakashige could be present on this memorable occasion.

I see by the radar skyclock that my time is about up, so in closing I would like to express the sincere wishes of the faculty and alumni that all visitors, especially the honored class of 1950, will enjoy these festivities.

With these sentiments in mind I declare this school officially opened and dedicate it to the service of the children of our graduates, who need it most.

Thank you for your kind attention,

Jackie Desberg,
Acting Principal, June 2000

'49-'50 Football Squad

On the Record to Stay

A THUMPING 19 to 12 upset win over Glenville was the first and only victory the football squad could gain during our first year at East High. Solid student backing and the gridders' excellent sportsmanship, however, made students as proud of the Blue Bomber team as Latin was of its championship Lions. As sophomores we were even prouder, for two of our classmates, Paul Kolach and Dave Sugiuchi, gained berths on the squad.

Paul was also our contribution to the 47-48 hardwood five. The squad was green and had a rough season, winning only two contests. One, over John Hay, Senate foe, and the other in an independent fray with West High. Good sportsmanship and all-out support, which has always been typical of East High rooters, prevailed.

Following the hardwood season, there was considerable controversy about whether baseball or track should take the spring "sportlight." The response from both factions was so strong that teams were fielded in both sports.

Earl J. Ocker, who had coached the cinder squad in Mentor Frank Seiler's absence in '47, organized the baseball squad, and Coach Seiler returned to tutor the thinclads.

Not as many track laurels were captured that year as had been won in '47, but two of our classmates, Joe Mozic and Bob White, gained valuable experience while representing the Blue and Gold in district meets.

Coach Ocker did a spectacular job of working East's first diamond crew in six years into a formidable aggregation that bagged the runner-up spot in the East Senate. Catcher John Marjak was in the starting lineup as the Ockermen clubbed East Tech's Artisans, 6 to 0, in the season opener. After their initial victory, the Bombers dropped three straight contests to Benedictine, Adams and Collinwood nines. Undaunted, however, they came roaring back to thrash Hay twice and the Artisans for the second time. Then they wreaked revenge on Collin-wood and Adams, making them taste bitter defeat by 6-point margins. Due to their speedy finish the Bombers were rated as the surprise team of the year and took second place with a 6-4 won-lost record.

COACHING staffs have been completely rearranged during our tenure at East. When Greg Conly resigned his football coaching duties to become Athletic Manager, Tom J. Corbo took over the gridiron squad. Eugene "Jeep" Krakowiak has replaced William Fleishman as basketball mentor, and after Frank Seiler was transferred to another school, G. G. Dales took over tutelage of the thinclads. Baseball, non-existent during our first year at East, was coached by Earl J. Ocker.

The '48 pigskin season was a stormy one for Coach Corbo, whose new "T" formations failed in East's first five games. The Bombers came to life at midseason, however, whipping Tech, Glenville, and Central before dropping a close decision to Collinwood in the Schedule's finale.

End Kolach earned his second letter in football while Quarterback Dave Sugiuchi, Guard Mills Milite, and Tackle Bill Wotawa were gaining their first "E"s.

The '48-'49 basketball season was one of thrills and chills, with seven of the 15 tilts being decided by two-point margins. East managed to capture six wins while dropping nine tilts. From the ranks of the June '50 class came Ralph Simmonds and Bill Parsons who alternated at center; Jimmy Doi and Bob White, guards, and Kolach, forward.

The spring months of '49 turned out to be the season of success on the East sport front. The thinclads, under the careful guidance of G. G. Dales, stunned everyone by capturing fourth place in the State meet. The lightweight relay team, anchored by Joe Mozic, also pulled a surprise by setting a new record in the Arena Meet. All in all, the cinder squad was a dangerous aggregation in every competition.

Coach Ocker again tapped East's baseball talent supply, came up with a completely revamped '49 team, and repeated as Senate runners-up. The Bomber nine posted a record of nine wins and three losses. It is interesting to note that each loss was by the slim margin of one run. Performing for our class were John Marjak, catcher; Bob Zizelman, pitcher; Dave Sugiuchi, outfielder, and Bob Shively, shortstop.

Basketball

Track

BEFORE the '49 grid season opened many sport scribes predicted a high spot on the totem pole for the Bombers. East lived up to the pre-season outlook in their opener as they won an exciting 7-6 victory over their traditional rivals from East Cleveland, Shaw High. This, incidentally, was the only victory over Shaw in our three years here.

The Mansfield Express roared past the Bombers in the next outing, but an ineligibility forfeiture from Benedictine placed our Bombers on top in the Senate. They followed by slashing the Adams aggregation by three touchdowns, and then humbled Cleveland Heights to the tune of 51-0.

A fair Glenville eleven fell before the Bombers, but East Tech and Central jolted our hopes for a Charity Game berth.

The Corbomen closed the season by putting on a 22-point splurge in the last ten minutes to down Collinwood 22 to 13. This Collinwood victory was something a Bomber eleven hadn't won since 1939. Paul Kolach, in earning his third letter, was named first string end on the local All-Scholastic team. Dave Sugiuchi, who earned his second "E", was named "East's most valuable player." Guard Bill Wotawa and Tackle Mills Milite, earning second letters, and Ray Manchook, Spero Spiliotis and Vern Hicks, backs, Ralph Simmonds, end, winning their first monograms, played important roles in leading East to its best record in our three-year story.

Coach Krakowiak's initial season at the helm of the basketball quintet was far from successful, if one looks only at the record of wins. The cagers dropped 14 consecutive contests. Coach "K", a popular man at East despite these losses, had his sights set on the future. With eight of his regulars enlisted from the sophomore class, the coach was busy building teamwork and spirit that bodes well for future hoopster squads. At that, half of the games were decided by extremely close margins.

It is now probably time to mention our "unsung athlete", Jim Newland. Jim for five semesters has worked as one of the student managers, better known as the "bucket brigade." The job consists of seeing that all equipment is properly dispensed and cared for. When one considers that there are four major sports at East, he realizes what a difficult job it is to be a manager. Although we "razzed" him plenty during the years, our hats are off to Jim Newland, water boy unexcelled.

THE baseballers of 1950, by ringing up a 9-0 victory over John Marshall, treated us to our first district championship on the athletic scene during our three years at East.

With the team at its peak, there were high hopes of a state title. In the first round of the regionals, however, powerful Akron Garfield edged the Bombers 1-0 in the season's top thriller. Our class will never forget the heroic performance of 12B Fred Konrad who, although recuperating from blood-poisoning the day of the game, pitched the heartbreaking loss.

Classmates Catcher Spero Spiliotis, Shortstop Bob Shively, Second Baseman George Wilson, Right-fielder John Marjak, and Infielder Dave Sugiuchi were sparkplugs of the squad, which at press time had roared to nine victories and was nearing the East Senate Title.

We, the June '50 class, readily agree that this fine record of victories and good sportsmanship is the perfect ending to a memorable Jubilee semester.

Baseball

First Row: Spero Spiliotis, Dave Sugiuchi, George Wilson, Manager Jimmy Newland, Coach Earl J. Ocker, Jimmy Kane, Bill Mastrobono, George Mallis.
Third Row: Ray Manchook, Walt Guzik, Bob Zizelman, Christ Petroff, Jack Elliott, Bob Dolgan, Vic Kovacic, Fred Konrad.

Scenes From The SENIOR REVUE of 1950

What of the Next Thirty Years?

IT is the dawn of a new decade . . . the year 1981. Far in outer space a saucer-like object is seen entering the solar system.

A closer view reveals it to be the Glue and Mold space ship of Professors RAY FISHER, JOHN MIERZWA and ED SALAMANT, who are on an expedition from their Saturnian laboratories in hope of gathering statistics concerning their fellow earth-beings for the completion of their latest book.

In the main strato-cabin, Chief Engineers LAWRENCE GUSTIE, DON BLAIR and RONALD HUMPHREY are making final adjustments on the Video-scope, the latest invention of the eminent physicist, DR. VERNON WATSON, through which they hope to view scenes which are taking place on earth. As we move closer to the Video-scope the first pick-up is made.

In the deep and treacherous jungles of Africa we see MARGIE BOND who is now the faithful wife of Dr. I. C. Reform, noted missionary. With her are missionaries JUDY RILEY and MARGIE BLAHA.

On board our space ship Associate Directors KENNETH CUMMINS, STEVE KERMAN and ROCCO ANTENUCCI have opened the East port and we are now picking up scenes from what appears to be a southern state on the continent of North America — Georgia — we see that hard-talking and hot-headed tobacco auctioneer CLAUDIA BRUCE and her advertising agent JIM DENNIS, who are buying up the best tobacco for the CROSS and KRAUS Tobacco Co.

Farther to the North our Video-scope sights the Vork Club of New York, established by DICK VORK in 1972. Many famous personages frequent this club and among those present at this time we find the vivacious Powers Model, AGNES CHICRIS; LEO KROKOS and CAROLE FERRANDO, a dance team billed here. That tap trio — DONNA KILBANE, JEAN SEARLES and BONNIE DUNKEL — are the hit of the season, but an act which is a close runnerup is JIM ENDICOTT, featured vocalist, with an all-male chorus composed of singers DAVE WEBER, GEORGE WILSON, AL TACKLA, DICK McCARTHY, BOB RICKEL and AL TUDINI.

In the lobby of the Vork Club we see new electronic gumball vending machines, which are owned by DON SCHINDLER the gumball magnate. At the curb before the entrance to the club two helicopter cabs have stopped. From the first, out steps Driver LORRAINE ERWIN to open the door for her passengers, MERLIN TWOEY, noted comedian, and SADIE LOMBARDO, vocalist, who are to perform at the club during the following week. Then we watch the driver of the second cab, BETTY HYND, skillfully maneuver her machine further along the street to the entrance of Hotel Halldorf Castoria. The doorman, JAMES JOHNSON, hastens to the taxi after calling Bellhop BILL FREELAND, to help with the luggage. MARY NOLLER and DORIS UEBEL, traveling saleswomen, alight and enter the Hotel.

A moment later a rapid transit flashes on the screen of our Video-scope and the familiar face of JAMES MAISTROS, motorman, appears. DORIS ALLEN enters the car and, remembering JIM, nods to him and goes to the rear to pay her fare to the conductorette, JOAN HOPKINS.

Our Glue and Mold space ship now moves swiftly West, and we are able to view other scenes of domestic life as lived by the earth people. Here we find ourselves flying over the State of California and our Video-scope is focused on the famous Rose Seferian Bowl where a football game is in progress. Coach WALTER LHAMON is leading his California Nugget team against the Eastern title holders coached by GEORGE SMITH.

We then head out over the broad Pacific and in a very short time sight Hawaii where we see industrialists ANN LIPOLD and CHARLES STROBERG, who are vacationing there. It seems that they have developed a process for producing Don Eagle Mowing Machines and are now living on the profits. Further North in the pineapple fields we sight fruit pickers JOHN CHERNISS, RICHARD LITWINOWICZ and ARNOLD MILLER hard at work under the healthful sun of peaceful Hawaii.

DORIS KOZAN, our Chief Pilot aboard the Strato-cruiser, brings us now to the coast of Asia and as we penetrate the continent a strange new scene is viewed on the Video-scope. High in the Himalayas we sight explorers MARJORIE J. ROUZER and ROBERT E. FISHER, who have entered this forgotten land in search of Tibetan goats which they have discovered are excellent substitutes for setting hens.

We now wing our way Westward and as we speed over London we catch a glimpse of VINCE PAWLOWSKI, who was hired by the British Government to rid the city of the dense fog.

Aboard our space ship, Stenographers MARLENE MORRIS and HELEN RETZER have gathered enough data to satisfy the keen, discriminating minds of our professors, and the return voyage is begun

East High's Golden Story

AT the turn of the century, eight hundred students eagerly awaited the opening of the new and ultra modern high school building on Genesee Avenue, as East 82 Street was then called. For, when school opened on September 10, 1900, the new East High School had not yet been completed.

An armory located near the corner of East 36 Street and Sibley (Carnegie Avenue) served as temporary headquarters, and, in that little red school house, as the Sibley Branch was called, students started their work with teachers from Central High School.

On the Monday of Thanksgiving week, November 26, faculty and students under the leadership of B. U. Rannells, principal, and D. W. Lothman and Miss Frances Adams, assistants, moved into their new $180,000 home without loss of time or interruption of class work.

Although there were some who believed that the school should be called North High because of its location, Mr. Rannells, remembering the great heights to which Eastern cultures had risen and the contribution of those people to Western civilization, insisted on calling it East High. And so, on May 29, 1901, the building was formally named and dedicated at an impressive ceremony in the new auditorium of the school.

A glowing torch, symbolizing the ardent spirit of love and service to East High, was chosen as the school emblem because of the significance of light and warmth of fire in ancient culture and ceremonial rites.

Blue and gold, colors to signify loyalty and royalty, were selected to typify the ideals and standards of the school. Blue, for loyalty: loyalty to school, friends, ambitions and the high standards for which East is known to this day. Gold, for royalty: finest and best in individual lives, traditions and the glory of the school.

Noblesse Oblige — noble rank imposes responsibilities — was chosen as the school motto, and, translated into educational terms, was interpreted as meaning that the more one receives in the way of training, experience, and the "good things of life", the greater is his responsibility to his community and to civilization.

The course of study has not always been as liberal and broad in scope as it is now. Originally, only three types of courses could be pursued: classical, scientific, and English. No provision was made for early students to benefit from study of industrial, applied or home arts which today provide high school graduates with basic preparation for an occupation. Formerly attention was focused only upon preparation for advanced study at colleges.

DURING 1902, an Alumni Association was formed to continue the social life of the school, and, in 1906, an Alumni Fund Association was incorporated to "give temporary aid, when needed, to alumni during their college course."

In 1903 the East High Library opened as a sub-branch of the Cleveland Public Library to serve teachers, students, and neighborhood. Seven years later in 1910 it became a school library with its own permanent book collection. Today it contains more than 10,000 volumes, and subscribes regularly to seventy-nine magazines.

The first student governing body which was organized in 1901 was remodeled after city government organization. The plan flourished for two years, but it was abandoned in 1903. Four "Literary Societies" were organized that first year. The Zetagathean and Athenaeum, the former an honorary club for senior boys and the latter a similar one for senior girls. Later the junior boys organized the Ciceronian Society and the sophomore boys, the Delphian. Prime purposes of these boys' groups were "to perfect students in parliamentary usages and gain more fluency and confidence in debate." The Athenaeum Society "strove to promote the best that is in girls in every way — debating and literary efforts, womanly skill in sewing and cooking, art and music."

Forerunner of the modern vocational guidance program, College Day, was held first in 1907. According to Mr. Rannells, this was the first such high school program held anywhere in the country. Halls were strung with college pennants, displays of college catalogues, and informational literature were set up and representatives of many universities were present for consultation.

At the close of his administration in 1909, Mr. Rannells originated the impressive and lasting ceremony of passing the Mantle. Today, as at its incipiency, to receive the blue and gold cloak and to deliver the class oration is regarded as the highest honor to which an East High girl can aspire. Originally the ceremony was a part of Class Night, a traditional senior celebration, but in 1916 the passing of the Mantle was built into the graduation program.

The girl who wears the Mantle during her 12A year pre-eminently represents the school, its intellectual standards, its friendly social life, its ideals of school and community leadership. When the Mantle is passed, the duties and privileges, symbolized, are passed with it. Mrs. B. U. Rannells, wife of the principal, helped to select and design the first Mantle; thirteen years later the class of June '22 replaced it with another blue velvet cloak lined with gold satin that hangs gracefully draped from the shoulder. The original robe is still preserved, however, as a sentimental reminder of the class and the man who started the tradition.

WHEN Mr. Rannells retired in 1910, Daniel W. Lothman was named to succeed him. Of the thirty-one years Mr. Lothman was associated with East High School, twenty-one were in the capacity of principal. This is the longest tenure of one man in the history of the school's administration.

"No student of high rank and splendid character need be deprived of the privilege of going to college", declared Mr. Lothman, paraphrasing an inscription on a building at Harvard University. And, through his efforts and his personal contributions, many worthy scholars were able to continue their educations in the universities of their choices.

In 1913 a "fine new chemical laboratory" replaced the old, and, by this time, inadequate one. Latest model equipment was made available to chemistry students. A new Steinway grand piano was purchased by students in 1914 from a percentage profit from selling tickets for a lecture course. Walter Trimmer, popular present-day organist, was among the first to use the new instrument.

Until 1915, there had been only one graduating class each year, but from that date on, increasing midterm enrollment made two commencements advisable.

The Blue and Gold, "oldest high school weekly in the city", published its first edition in April, 1916. Though the size and number of columns and frequency of publication have varied with economic conditions in the world, the school paper has carried on continuously since that day. A paper of distinction, it has brought many honors to the Alma Mater, but most of all the Blue and Gold is proud of its record of serving East High School, and providing a voice for her students.

On April 6, 1917, the complexion of life changed drastically for everyone. President Woodrow Wilson, who had been a guest speaker at East High while he was president of Princeton University, declared the United States of America to be at war with Germany and her allies. World War I had begun. More than 250 East boys entered their country's service and four gave their lives in "the war to end all wars." Groups of girls clothed in bloomers and overalls joined the farmerettes. Liberty Bond rallies and slogans built the morale of those who stayed at home and supplied necessary funds for the government. Patriotism ran at high tide.

Miss Katharine L. O'Grady, teacher of dramatics, came to East High School in 1902 and remained until her retirement in 1938. During that period Miss O'Grady developed an enviable reputation even beyond the limits of Cleveland for her rhetoricals and stage productions. An even more enviable record of her work remains in the hearts and lives of the students she trained. By their testimony we know that she taught more than dramatics; she built character, personality, and leisure-time interests.

ONE of her most outstanding productions was "Columbia Draws the Sword" written by Miss Catherine T. Bryce, assistant to the Superintendent of Schools, and produced at East on April 19, 1918. The patriotic script, masterfully staged, thrilled the audience so that it was later presented at the Hipprodrome Theater and still later at the estate of Mrs. A. D. Baldwin in Mentor, Ohio. Many who saw it believed that it should be put on a road tour to arouse public spirit. This is but one sample of Miss O'Grady's contributions to students, school, and community.

The importance and value of dramatics in the present East course of study found its well-spring in the spirit, energy, and creative art of Miss O'Grady.

In September, 1918, compulsory Military Training was ordered into the schools and, for the most part, replaced the former gymnasium classes "which often failed because not all boys were reached all of the time." After 1924, Military Training became elective by ruling of the Board of Education.

In 1918 Amos Parrish, East High '11, wrote words for an Alma Mater which were set to the familiar sentimental ballad, "Till We Meet Again." That song has lived through the years and endeared itself to each succeeding class.

In May, 1919, the new gymnasium, housed in an addition to the original building, was opened. Previous to this time, the auditorium and the gymnasium were both located on the fourth floor.

In 1921, the Student Government Association was reorganized under the present name of Student Council, and the extra-curricular club program was expanded in the days that followed the signing of the Armistice.

The Bookery, a service project and forerunner of the modern "Store", was established in January 1922 by the boys of the Lincoln Club to help students obtain or dispose of second-hand books. Originally it was located on the third floor near the chemistry room. By September of that year, the enterprise had been so successful that paper, pencils, and other necessary school supplies were added.

In 1923, the June graduating class initiated a new idea which has come to be one of the significant moments to the 12A class, the passing of the log. On the dedication page they said: "We, the class of June 1923, dedicate this book, 'The East High Historian', to all classes that come after us. We hope that the giving of the book may become a real part of Class Night, and that in it may be written the history of each succeeding class, which will make it, in time, a true history of our beloved Alma Mater, East High School." With only a few exceptions, this wish has been carried out faithfully by succeeding class historians.

The late '20's and early '30's brought the dark days of depression. Schools were hard pressed to keep running, and parents had difficulty to finance their children's educations. Carnivals were held to provide funds from which lunches, shoes and clothing for the less fortunate might be purchased. These were the days of the NYA (National Youth Administration), a nation-wide effort to provide work opportunities for needy students. Everywhere every effort was made to keep school-age pupils in school.

IN 1931, Daniel Lothman, beloved by students and faculty, retired, and Edwin L. Findley, who had been teacher and assistant at East from 1900-1919, was recalled from his administrative position at South High School to succeed Mr. Lothman. Always an enthusiastic classicist, Mr. Findley did much to preserve and carry forward the spirit and reputation of East High during the lean financial years.

In 1936 Mr. Findley retired and Floyd L. Simmons was named principal. Mr. Simmons was the first administrator to come to East without previous association with the school. In its earlier days, East High had been considered almost exclusively as a college preparatory institution. As economic conditions reduced the number of students who sought advanced education, Mr. Simmons set about broadening the curriculum to provide opportunities in commercial courses, industrial arts, home economics, music and applied arts. Thus students were free to prepare either for college or a career immediately following high school commencement.

His work was interrupted, the normal way of American life was interrupted, when the threatening rumble of war became a reality on December 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor Day. In January, Mr. Simmons was called into the Army with the rank of Colonel, and James B. Fenwick, his assistant, carried on as acting principal until E. E. Smeltz came to East in 1943.

From Colonel Simmons came this message urging those who were privileged to remain in school to make the most of their educational opportunities:

> In such times as this there is always the danger that regular practices which have been designed carefully with thorough planning and testing may be discarded because of the hysterical feeling that all that is regular must be overturned.
> Just remember that you are going to live a long while and that your satisfaction with life will be conditioned throughout by your experiences in school. Otherwise the very act of defending our most precious institutions may be instrumental in destroying them. The fundamental defense of our American principles is right here in school where the solution of problems, social and civic, as well as scholastic, is fostered.

Mr. Fenwick and Principal Smeltz faced the days of the Victory Corps, scrap collection and air raid drills. These were trying days when every effort was made in the schools to prepare calmly, yet clearly, for life in a world at war. Aeronautical physics was introduced into the curriculum; first-aid courses were offered; paper was conserved; War Bonds were sold; students held a clean-up day to fill in because custodial help had gone to war; the Lincoln Club, which disbanded only a few years ago, washed windows in doors and hallways. More than one thousand seventy-six boys and girls from East left school to join some branch of the armed forces, and 88 gold stars showed on the service flag.

THE first Cleveland man to win a Congressional Medal of Honor was Frank J. Petrarca, January '39. His citation read:

> ". . . Even on the threshold of death he continued to display valor and contempt for the foe; raising himself to his knees, this intrepid soldier shouted defiance at the enemy, made a last attempt to reach his wounded comrade and fell in glorious death . . ."

His courage and his manhood had been nurtured at East and his example has been an inspiration.

Mr. Smeltz continued to educate the boys and girls at East to live for those precious rights and institutions for responsible citizenship in a world which would need patient reconstruction.

V J Day followed V E Day in 1945. While there was rejoicing for the end of the war in Japan and Europe, tragic memories and the immense peace — still to be won — tempered the joyous outburst, and East High School continued to adjust the curriculum to meet the needs of her students.

After four years, Mr. Smeltz was transferred to John Adams High School to fill the vacancy left when E. E. Butterfield was made assistant superintendent of schools in charge of junior and senior high schools. Some conception of the esteem in which students and faculty held their principal can be gained from the fact that, when the organization of the Future Teachers of America at East was enlarged in scope to include all college preparatory students, remembering his friendly spirit, they elected to call themselves the Emmet Smeltz group.

Dr. P. M. Watson who only recently had helped Central High to celebrate its one hundredth anniversary, came to East in 1947, in time to help plan the Golden Jubilee here. This is especially remarkable when one remembers that Central also furnished the nucleus of teachers which started East High back in 1900. Under Dr. Watson's guidance the school has continued to recognize and emphasize the wide variations in individual needs of students. Therefore, while college preparatory subjects are encouraged, high scholarship standards in commercial courses and in industrial, home and fine arts are recognized as being equally important.

The extracurricular program has been developed to include clubs of all kinds. Some, like the National Honor and Athenaeum Societies, stress scholarship attainments; others, like the Camera Club and Club Cleveland, develop hobby interests; still others, like Bridge and Whirlo groups, are purely social and recreational. But somewhere on the club schedule is an activity for everyone — or, if there isn't, a suggestion may create one.

Plans to build a new auditorium, north of the main building and extending through the entire block, have been approved by the Board of Education, and, if all goes well, work on this project will begin during the summer of 1950.

With an eye to the future, East High School has traditionally focused sharply on the needs of her student population — mentally, morally, socially and physically. So it is that at the midcentury mark, nearly 15,000 graduates will salute their Alma Mater.

THE ATHENAEUM SOCIETY, composed of senior girls, is the oldest organization in continuous existence at East High. Founded in 1900 by Mrs. B. U. Rannells, wife of the principal, the honorary society was originally intended to promote literary efforts and debating and to encourage service to the school.

Many of the activities which the girls undertook have since been discontinued or absorbed by other organizations, such as Student Council. The Big-Little Sister Party for 10B girls, the football banquet, the presentation of letters to gridiron heroes, and the Mothers and Daughters Banquet were typical of early social events.

To become a member of the society today, a senior girl must have at least a B average and be of good character. Highlights of the social season are the Athenaeum-Laurean formal dance and the senior dinner given by the 12B members.

In the spring of 1948, the girls voted unanimously to purchase two prize-winning figurines from the Alice in Wonderland group created by Edris Eckhardt, January '24, an alumna of the Society. The members hope that these ceramic figures will serve as an incentive to continue collecting art objects made by East High graduates.

Today, as when the club began, it is an honor and a privilege to be selected to belong to the Athenaeum Society. Present officers are Claudia Bruce, president; Doris Allen, vice president; Lillian Fabjancic, secretary; Kinuko Nakashige, corresponding secretary, and Doris Kozan, treasurer. Miss Gisela Birkner is adviser to the organization.

The LAUREAN LITERARY SOCIETY of East High has come down through the years as a club looked upon with admiration and respect. To be a member, a girl must have a B average and an outstanding service record in her years at East.

The purpose of the group is to promote culture, high scholarship and friendship among the girls of the junior class. One of East's oldest clubs, this honor society was founded in 1910. Its record has been one of commendable service to the school.

In order to inspire new members with the full meaning of this society, an impressive formal initiation is presented at the beginning of each semester. Four old members speak on service, scholarship, character, and leadership.

Some of the regular activities are the formal dance, which is combined with the Athenaeum Society; movies on personality and manners, literary meetings at which members read stories or poems, panel discussions, and ushering at the annual play or operetta.

Officers of the Society are Doris Phillips, president; Mich Yamane, vice president; Ada Wolfe, recording secretary; Mary Lewis, corresponding secretary; Carole Waltz, treasurer, and Anna Mae Louie, membership chairman. Miss Juanita B. Jones is adviser to the group.

Although it is difficult to determine just when the present CHORAL CLUB became established, there have been vocal music groups at East from the beginning. To belong to the Choral Club is the goal of every young singer at East, for this group represents the finest vocal expression. Outstanding junior high singers join the 10B Chorus for one semester of Choral training. They are later separated, according to their abilities, into the voice class, Glee Club or Mixed Chorus.

Yearly program of the club consists of a number of assembly appearances, including the impressive Christmas and Easter programs. Participation in community activities has taken the group to the Public Library and Nathan Hale Junior High School this semester for concerts.

In May 1950, the group was chosen to perform over the NBC network through the facilities of WTAM Cleveland. Five other schools throughout the United States participated in this series of Green Cross Safety programs.

Probably the biggest thrill to all members of the Choral Club occurs at the annual operetta. That "show business" bug has been "biting" singers for several years, but performances which stand out above all others are HMS Pinafore, The Pirates of Penzance and The Mikado, by Gilbert and Sullivan. Officers of the club are: James Speziale, president; Louise Dukosky, secretary and treasurer; Don Maloof, Laura Roberts, Arlene Koporc, librarians. Haydn L. Mathews is vocal music instructor and sponsor of the group.

Languages have traditionally played an important part in the history of East High. Latin and Greek were stressed in the earliest days of the school, and it is interesting to note that at one time East employed eight Latin teachers. From the standpoint of age, however, Latin is the youngest of the three language clubs now active.

The GERMAN CLUB can trace its history back to 1901, for it was in October of that year that it was organized with twenty-two members — juniors and seniors — who were able to carry on an ordinary conversation in German.

For the next seven years it played an active part in school life. It was called the German Literary Society at first, and then, in 1905, the name was changed to the German Cultural Club. By the end of 1906, the club passed out of existence, and it was not until some time in the '20's that a German Club was again organized; it was known as the German Friendship Club. Since 1932, Miss Ida F. Budde has sponsored the group.

Fifty years have produced many changes in East High and also in the policies of the club. For example, members are now admitted after one semester of the language, with the result that only the parliamentary part of the program is carried on in German. The original purpose of the club, however, remains the same; namely, to increase the students' opportunities to learn more of the cultural and historical life of Germany and its people. Over the years, interest in the German Club has been increasing, and, at present, with fifty members, it is one of the largest organizations in the school.

Officers are Edith Schneider, president; Robert Dellinger, vice president; Barbara Shiller, recording secretary; Arlene Grauberger, corresponding secretary; Tony Minotti, treasurer.

In 1904 the FRENCH CLUB began its existence and chose as its name the French emblem, the Fleur de Lis.

From 1904 until 1946 there are no known written records of the group. It is reported, however, that the organization took an active interest in orphans of World War I and sponsored dances and a banquet each semester to earn money to aid the little French children.

Aim of the club has always been to give students an opportunity to practice French conversation and to create a better understanding of the culture through reading contemporary books, magazines and papers. A project which gives added enjoyment to members is correspondence with French pen-pals.

Besides the traditional language medals presented annually by the director of foreign languages at the Board of Education, the twenty-five-dollar Brooks Friebolin award is a special honor for outstanding French students at East. This prize was offered first in 1948 in memory of Mr. Friebolin, June, '27, who was an outstanding French student.

The 1950 club has 45 members under the leadership of Catherine McLane, president; Loretta Mensin, secretary; Larry Paciorek, treasurer. Miss Mary M. McMahon is the adviser.

In September 1928, the first Latin Club at East was organized under the name of INTER NOS.

At first, yearly banquets, closely following Roman custom, were planned. These affairs were held in celebration of the Saturnalia, ancient Roman holidays. Before the banquet, an offering of meal, salt, and wine was made to the gods. Waiters clad in bloused tunics served the courses; the menus were small scrolls. In accordance with an ancient Roman custom, the guests exchanged gifts. When the banquet drew to a close, everyone present consulted the Cumaean Sybil, an oracle who could foretell the future.

Present-day activities feature assembly programs, field trips, treasure hunts and social good times. Officers are Joann Tetzschner, president; Pat Stealey, vice president; Audrey Grand, secretary; Ralph Graner, treasurer. Miss Anne Marek, Latin teacher, sponsors the group.

In 1916, the Girl Reserves was started at East as a part of the Little Girls Christian Association. Now it is known as the Y-TEEN FRIENDSHIP CLUB, part of the international association, the YWCA.

The club has been a source of recreation, aid, and inspiration for thirty-four years. Through it girls find opportunity for service, help with personal problems in discussion groups; recreation in hiking, swimming, dancing and camping, and inspiring ideals shared by girls around the world.

The spiritual background of the club is revealed in the all-impressive Recognition Ceremony given in honor of new members each semester, when three candles, representing body, mind, and spirit, are lighted.

The group prides itself in having a service project each term. They have cheered invalids in hospitals, sent relief to Y-Teen clubs in war-torn Europe and collected toys for orphans.

Any girl may join the Y-Teen club, since it is open to all, regardless of race, color, creed, physical or mental abilities. Miss Faunta B. Perkins and Miss Helen Murray sponsor the East High group jointly. Officers include Rita Ruolo, president; Mary Ann Rossman, vice president; Dawn Cline, recording secretary; Johanna Leposky, corresponding secretary; Millie Zailac, treasurer.

The seed of an idea, which later grew into the DRAMATICS CLUB, was sown in 1916 when students asked, "How about a dramatic club to breach the gap between the sophomore oratory course and the senior rhetoricals?" Apparently some sort of groups did get together, for there are records of plays given by small classes of students. However, it was not until 1928 that evidence of a formal organization is recorded. At that time the Masque Club was begun to continue study of drama after a year of play production. Their chief activity was to read, discuss and study all types of plays.

Today the group carries out something of the same kind of program. Students direct each other in short productions, learn to apply makeup for the annual play and operetta, and help the stage crew with scenery and properties.

Trips to the Hanna, the Play House and Karamu theaters and backstage interviews with well-known actors and actresses keep the group informed about modern theater trends.

Miss Esther Perilstein, dramatics teacher, advises the group which elected the following officers: Judy Riley, president; Otto Krech, vice president; Audrey Grande, secretary; Ralph Graner, treasurer.

The original CHEMISTRY CLUB was founded in 1920 by a group of students especially interested in that science. Speakers, both student and guest, and field trips made up a major portion of the program.

More recently the group has been interested in gaining a practical view of chemistry and its application to industry and everyday life. To satisfy this interest, the club has performed experiments other than those required in the curriculum and has visited college and industrial laboratories. The Chemistry Club has also fostered visits of lecture groups from Case Institute of Technology. These groups have demonstrated various colorful chemical phenomena to school assemblies.

Unique in the matter of organization, this club has no officers, and, though they have only twenty members, they hope to show everyone the importance and contribution of chemistry to mankind.

To promote the athletic program among girls of the school, to develop individual leadership and to create a more friendly spirit among girls are the objects of the GIRLS GYM LEADERS CLUB, founded in 1921.

To become a member, a girl must go through a series of tests given in the gymnasium. Her qualifications are estimated by the following standards: scholarship, attendance, effort, dependability, initiative and personality.

Some of the activities that are included in the club program are the overnight hike, game night with another school, and a senior banquet for graduating members.

The club members keep physically fit and try to improve themselves in all ways so as to enjoy a fuller life and be of service to their school, family, and community.

Miss Lillian Aitken is adviser to the group. The officers are Alma Montali, president; Helen Retzer, vice president; Pat Drier, secretary; Jeanette Uyesugi, treasurer.

The NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY at East High School was the first chapter of the nation-wide organization in Cleveland, and it came into being in 1928 as a direct result of student protest against the injustices of the Honor Key System which had been used up to that time. The induction ceremonial which is still in use was written in 1929 by "old members" of the Society.

Purpose of the Honor Society is to bring recognition to those who have been outstanding in scholarship, leadership, character and service.

Percentages of students ranking in the upper third of their classes are eligible for election into the chapter. Of the 12A class fifteen per cent may be selected; of the 12Bs ten per cent may be chosen, and of the 11As only five per cent may be named.

A council, consisting of the principal and four teachers, takes the responsibility of choosing the candidates recommended to them by vote of the faculty. Installation of new members is conducted in open session at a school assembly. An impressive ceremony, honoring the inductees and charging them with upholding the ideals of the organization, serves as an inspiration to the audience.

Officers for the Honor Society are Jim Dennis, president; Ed Fisher, vice president; Jean Searles, secretary; Claudia Bruce, treasurer.

On November 15, 1933, the first MATHEMATICS CLUB at East High School was organized. Since that time it has been educational in its practical application of mathematics. Instruction in the use of the slide rule has become a part of the regular program. A semi-annual event is the measuring of the flag pole in front of the school. The answers may vary slightly, but everyone has fun using the transit.

Some of the more ambitious members have measured the height of the Terminal Tower and the distance to the lighthouse and to the crib.

The club's sponsor, J. M. Jacobs, arranges profitable tours of Nela Park and trips to Case observatory. Many former members have benefited in college and at their jobs by their instruction and participation in the Math Club. Officers are Bob Shively, president; Virginia Byers, secretary.

The FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE LAMP CLUB originated about fourteen years ago. Eight girls formed the club to aid the school nurse and to render services to students when the nurse was not present. Membership now includes fifty.

The "Florence Nightingales," as they are often called, take care of minor injuries and assist the doctor and nurse by weighing, measuring, and checking vision of pupils.

These girls, who are interested in nursing, enjoy frequent visits to hospitals where they learn helpful facts and hospital routine. Recently a fifty-dollar scholarship was established to be awarded annually to an outstanding member entering nurses' training.

The Florence Nightingales not only work, but also find time for social events such as swimming parties, senior dinners, and picnics. Mother and Daughter programs with guest speakers have also been added recently to their program. Jackie Brehm, president; Virginia Byers, vice president; Joan Ritz, secretary, and Florence Onishi, treasurer, are the officers, and Miss Ruth A. Eisele, R.N., is the adviser.

The COMMERCIAL CLUB was organized in 1937 to give commercial students an opportunity to become better acquainted with business, its methods, and current trends.

Field trips to business colleges and offices are a part of the semester program and enable students to see business in operation. Conferences with business executives also afford club members an insight into the business world. One semester of a commercial subject is required for membership. Included among its activities are a few social affairs such as the senior banquet.

At present, there are seventy members with Miss June Gallagher as sponsor. Officers are Erma Martinov, president; Betty Dearth, vice president; Diana Rodono, secretary; Alma Montali, treasurer.

The EMMET SMELTZ CLUB is an outgrowth of the Future Teachers of America which was organized at East in 1945. Today it is a group that welcomes all college preparatory students in the name of a former principal of this school and a great educator.

Included in its program are trips to colleges, visits to elementary schools, vocational guidance, and movies and speakers. Alumni who attend college often return to share their experiences and give friendly tips to members on what to expect from advanced study.

On the lighter side, the club has a varied program, with talent shows, Get-Acquainted and Christmas parties, and treasure hunts among their activities.

Miss Edna Grant, guidance counselor, is sponsor of the group which chose the following officers: Millie Zailac, president; Bob Dellinger, vice president; Mary Ann Rossman, recording secretary; Mich Yamane, corresponding secretary; Charles Sax, treasurer.

The MAJORETTES CLUB was organized by Isabelle Kaforey and eight other students in September 1945. The purpose of this organization is to teach girls to twirl a baton and to strut so that they may march with the band at football games, perform at rallies and at the Band Jamboree.

Girls wishing to become members must meet rigid physical requirements and also have a satisfactory scholarship record.

Miss Ethel Johnson, home economics teacher, sponsors the club, and the officers are Judy Riley, president; Dorothy Kosch, vice president; Lillian Fabjancic, secretary; Bertha Kelly, treasurer.

The first BAND was organized at East in 1923, and in April of that year the musicians presented their first concert. Winners of several state-wide band contests and onetime runners-up in the national competition, the East High band has always ranked among the best.

D. Ernest Manring, instrumental music teacher, has been director since 1928.

Although the date of the organization of the East High ORCHESTRA is not certain, it is a well-known fact that this group has gladly made many fine contributions to assemblies and rallies. In the earliest traceable history of the school there were ukulele clubs, banjo clubs, which were enjoyed immensely by students. Later we find mention that the orchestra played at certain school functions. Under the direction of D. Ernest Manring, instrumental music teacher, the orchestra has continued to grow in size and quality. Many East High students have made a prominent place for themselves in the field of music. Assembly programs, the spring musical, and accompanying the annual operetta have become traditional activities for the orchestra.

One of the most progressive activities at East is the BLUE AND GOLD, the school newspaper which is published bi-weekly. Student-written and student-edited, the newspaper has brought many honors to East High School.

In 1916, the school paper made its first appearance. It has changed in size from a small three-column sheet to a large six-column paper, and is at present a five-column tabloid type. Regardless of the size, it has been the ideal of the editors to present a true picture of school activities and students, to promote what is best and, at all times, to serve as the voice of the students.

Although Journalism I and II are credit courses, much of the responsible work on the staff is carried on by voluntary election of the individual. Miss J. Marion Henderson is the adviser, and Klara Krech and Don Huebner are co-editors.

THE ADVENTURES AROUND EAST HIGH OF THE GOLDEN JUBILEE CLASS

By Jim Dennis

I WOULDN'T HAVE BEEN SURPRISED IF THIS HAD HAPPENED WHEN FIRST WALKING THROUGH THE TUNNEL TO GYM.

REMEMBER THE YO-YO FAD OF '49? EVEN IN FACULTY MEETINGS - THEY DISCUSSED THE BEST METHOD TO "ROCK THE CRADLE"

THIS IS ABOUT HOW BIG WE FELT WHEN WE FIRST ARRIVED AT EAST HIGH AS 10B'S. DIDN'T IT SEEM AS IF EVERYONE WAS POINTING AND LAUGHING AT YOU?

A TYPICAL GRADUATING SENIOR LEAVING EAST TO FACE THE WORLD.

EVEN THOUGH "OUR BOYS" BROUGHT HOME NO TITLES, WE CAN'T FAIL TO DEVOTE A SPACE TO FELLAS WE CONSIDER CHAMPS IN OUR BOOK.

ALTHOUGH EAST HAS STEADILY PROGRESSED, I BET THE EASTITES OF 1950 SEE THE SAME MOVIES THAT WERE SHOWN HERE BACK IN 1920.

THE DAY WILL COME WHEN WE'LL LAUGH AT THE "NEW LOOK" AND "BE-BOP" ERA AS WE PUSH A BUTTON AT THE AUTOMAT DEPARTMENT STORE FOR A PLASTIC, RADIO-ACTIVE DRESS OR SUIT.

YOU MUST BE NEW AROUND HERE, BUD! THAT WAS ONLY THE DRIVING CLASS OUT FOR A LITTLE SPIN. NO NEED FOR ALARM!!

WE JUST GOT UNDER THE WIRE FOR INITIATIONS IN THE 10TH GRADE. THE - - NEXT YEAR THEY WERE "CUT OUT"!

WHAT'S AILIN' THIS FELLA? WELL, HE'S SUFFERING FROM WHAT IS KNOWN AS A TV HANGOVER.

THE CLASS WAS FULL OF TALENT FOR THE SENIOR REVIEW. BUT SOME FINALLY HAD TO LEAVE THEIR ACCORDIANS AT HOME!!

BRR!! DIDN'T WE HAVE A COOL TIME AT THE FOOTBALL GAMES? SNIFF!! IT WAS FUN EVEN THOUGH WE NEARLY FROZE. ACHOO!
